

Bring peace into your home and to all of Israel

More than ever, we crave peace ...
Peace at home. Peace in the world.
Peace in Israel.

Shabbat candles have the unique power to bring peace into the home. Lighting candles on Friday evening is not just symbolic. The flames of these candles have the capacity to separate time, and serve as a buffer against mundane pressures and static.

Our mothers and grandmothers have known this for thousands of years.

But there is more. Because candle lighting is a time when prayers are heard ... a time when Jewish women focus on children, grandchildren and the things that matter most.

On Friday evening, May 30th the collective spiritual energy of millions of Jewish women around the world will concentrate on peace and security for our brothers and sisters in Israel.

Light Shabbat candles every Friday evening before sundown. Think of your children, your parents, your siblings, your friends, your world.

And on May 30th think especially of the Land of Israel and the longing for peace.

Add your name to the list of Jewish women and girls who will be lighting Shabbat candles for peace on Friday evening, May 30th by logging on to shabbatpeace.com.

Because, when millions of Jewish women pray together, miracles happen.
